THE EDITOR'S CHAIR.

HOW THINGS LOOK FROM OUR STAND POINT.

The Opinion of The Editor and the Opinion of Others which we Can Endorse on the Various Topics of the Day.

The New York Legislature is Democratic and it looks as if Gov. Hill will succeed "Evarts" in the Senate.

The vulgar Cannon of Illinois has been spiked. He will not fire off his billings-gate in the next House and cause the ladies to fly from the galleries insulted and disgusted.

In Indiana, President Harrison's own State, half the townships in the State in their returns show an average Democratic gain of 20 to the township. This will make the State Democratic by about 20,000, The Democrats elect 11 out of 13 Congressmen. The Legislature will be Democratic on joint ballot by 68.

The country can not indorse Harrison's administration of favoritism and class legislation. The people have spoken their condemnation of such unfair law making, at the polls, and from ocean to ocean their voice has been heard.

The present House, at the adjournment of the first session, was composed of 175 Republicans, 151 Democrats and 1 Independent, there being several vacancies caused by death. Of the members gained by the Democrats 30 are from States north of Mason and Dixon's line. It now looks as if the next House of Representatives would stand—Democrats, 236; Republicans, 90. This will give the Democrats more than two thirds of the House. When the present Congress passed the McKinley bill and showed its favor for the Force Bill it fired the magazine which blew the Republican party into a hopeless, helpless minority.

The country has repudiated the Force Bill and the McKinley tariff Bill at the polls. McKinley has been defeated and the Democratic majority in the next Congress will be more than one hundred. Heavy Democratic gains were made in the North and Northwest. In Kansas the Farmers' Alliance holds the balance of power and it appears that Senator Ingalls will not be returned to the Senate. Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Pennsylvania, Kansas, Michigan, Nebraska and Wisconsin have all gone Democratic. There has been a great tidal wave in these states—a condemnation of the last Congress which for disgraceful conduct and unjust laws stands without a parallel.

The great tidal wave of democratic success that swept over the country Tuesday brought more real rejoicing to the country than anything which has occurred since the election of Cleveland and Hendricks in 1884. Democratic faces are overspread with smiles, and who has a better right to smile, while the republicans, who are frightened clean out of their boots, go around with woe-begone faces and make no attempt to explain the condemnation which the voters of the country have placed upon the administration and upon the republican majority in Congress for its action in giving the people a batch of the most unpopular laws ever turned out at a single session of Congress, topped off with the worst of all, the McKinley tariff law, the weight of which has been felt by everybody, although it is only a month since it became a law.

The Progressive Farmer is making a mistake, a mistake that puts members of the Alliance all over the State to some extent in a false light; but it is a mistake that will damage no one as much as the paper itself. The paper has done a great deal of good in North Carolina, it waked up the people and put them to thinking, but that is all any paper can do, for the people think for themselves. The people, and Alliance people as that, have thought the Vance matter over and have rendered their verdict, a verdict decided by Alliance votes. That verdict is, that there is not a man in North Carolina who is better able or who will defend the people's rights and advocate their cause more zealous and honestly in the Senate of the United States than Z. B. Vance. In the Democratic caucus of the next Legislature he will be nominated on the first ballot if not by acclamation. If he should fail to do this, then the people will condemn him with the same strength with which they have loved and trusted him.

TORCHLIGHT PROCESSION

And Jollification at Harrell's Store---Rosin Burned and Speeches Made.

(Special Correspondence.)

The old settlers in this section say that nothing like the jubilee of last Saturday night was ever seen in these parts before. The street for a long distance was lighted on either side with blazing barrels of rosin. The people had gathered in from the surrounding country in full force and each one was vieing with the others to show that he was the gladdest over the people's victory.

Mr. Marion Butler, the Senator-elect from this district, who had been invited to speak on the occasion, arrived. Amid enthusiasm he was escorted to the rostrum. He said, you gave three cheers for Butler, but that is not what you mean. You mean three cheers for the people's victory in Sampson; three cheers for the people's victory in Kansas; three cheers for the people's victory in Michigan, Minnesota, South Carolina and Pennsyvania; three cheers that the people have beaten McKinley and Ingalls, and in so doing have triumphed over corporate greed and the tyranny of money. Three cheers for the triumph of truth and right everywhere. What does your victory mean? Here the speaker went on to give the elements that entered into the contest, and showed why the people arose in their might and elected men who they thought would see that simple justice was done to all classes.

In this county we have been divided among ourselves, yet both sides to-night rejoices over the great national victory that has put the popular branch of Congress in the hands of the people by over a hundred majority.

The speaker then went on to show that the fight in Kansas, South Carolina and other States which gave such astonishing results was on the same line and for the same principles as the fight in this county. Then what have we been doing here in Sampson? We have been playing the fool. We have been fighting one another instead of joining together to fight the common enemy, or to a certain extent both sides have been to blame. There is no fight between the farmers and the merchants or professors, and the member of the Alliance, who, by his words or conduct, leaves that impression, slanders he noble order, of which he is an unworthy member. The Alliance is fighting for great principles, and this great victory means the triumph of these principles, and the triumph of these principles means the prosperity of every man who is making or trying to make an honest living. It means an honest government—a government that will not put a few into pampered luxury at the expense of the many. It means that every farming and laboring man of Sampson (as well as elsewhere) will get a just compensation for his labor and the products of his labor, and that the merchant and lawyer will prosper as he prospers. Then let us all come and reason together and fight a common fight for the common good.

There were present a number who had been opposed to the Alliance. As Mr. Butler spoke they drew nearer and listened, and when he closed they all joined in the applause and cheers. The ladies presented the speaker with a large and handsome boquet, which he accepted in a graceful and appreciative terms.

The crowd then called upon a half dozen or more gentlemen who were present, and in their short talks many happy hits were made. The crowd spied Mr. Frank Colwell. They rushed to him, picked him up, carried him to the stand and called for a speech. He did speak and to good effect. There was no speech that did more good. He said that there had been trouble between him and the Alliance. That he had spent many sleepless nights as to what his duty was and how he should vote. But he said that he voted for Butler and that after hearing his speech, that he now thanked God that he had done so. Everything passed off successfully and in the best of humor.

The meeting has conciliated matters and done an untold amount of good. Neighbors will feel better toward each other and Alliance and non-Alliance men now understand each other and will hereafter work in perfect harmony for the common good of a common country. H.

The democrats are fortunate in having so much good material at hand to select the next Speaker of the House from. Among the names already mentioned are Messrs. Mills, Crisp, McMillan, Breckenridge, (Ky.) Bynum and Springer. The idea seems general that the speakership will go to the South. In that event it is almost certain that it will be one of the first four gentlemen above mentioned.

By P. T. BARNUM. Illustrated by H. C. COULTAUS.

There comes a crisis in the lives of most people when sorrows crowd so thick and fast that there is a dreary satisfaction in the thought that "things cannot be much worse."

So felt Edna Crawford, sitting with bowed head and shaken nerves, on the train that is bearing her onward to the bedside of her dying father. She bitterly regrets ever having left him, and fortures herself with wild pictures of the sufferings he may have endured at the unscrupulous hands of Dr. Watson.

So felt Edna Crawford, sitting with bowed head.

For this man, so inextricably entangled with the sorrow and disgrace that are connected with her past life, she feels a deep and relentless loathing. It was through his persecutions she was forced to leave her father's side, and remembering this, her young face wears an expression of such intense hatred that it attracts the attention of the lady occupying the opposite chair.

This lady had quietly entered the car by one door as Henry Henshall, powerless in the grasp of Detective Burns, was ejected through the other.

She was dressed in an elaborate light silk gown, totally inappropriate for traveling, and over a dainty little theatre bonnet was pinned a heavy dark veil that completely covered her face.

Beneath the veil was the tear stained countenance of Lena Henshall, who had been aroused by the tragic expression of Edna Crawford's face into thinking there was perhaps some one else as unhappy as herself.

Two hours before, when Henry Henshall left his young wife for the pursuit of his fascinating ideal, Lena had wandered aimlessly up and down her little parlor, a prey to bitter meditations. Sick at heart from brooding over her husband's neglect and the thoughts of a lonely and loveless future, she called Mrs. Smith and announced her intention of passing the evening at the theatre. At the sight of the girl's tear stained face Mrs. Smith wisely held her tongue, but the cynical smile that played about her thin lips caused young Mrs. Henshall to feel for her trusted companion a sudden hot dislike.

When Mrs. Smith left to make some preparation for accompanying her Lena threw herself on the bed in a paroxysm of bitter weeping. Her thoughts turned longingly toward her father, to whom she had always gone for advice and sympathy, and with these thoughts came the sudden determination to go to him without delay. She knew that Banker Hartman was then in Chicago on an important financial mission, and summoning a bell boy she procured a time table and found that with haste she could catch the 8:30 Chicago express.

She thrust a few articles into a valise, and leaving a brief message for Mrs. Smith to the effect "that she had decided to go out alone and not to wait up for her," she stepped into a cab and was soon at the Union depot. She purchased her ticket, securing the only remaining section on the train, and before she had time to realize the importance of the step she had taken she was whirling away en route for Chicago.

Lena was suddenly brought back to the consciousness of her position by the porter, who was collecting the compartment tickets preparatory to making up the berths for the night.

Edna, who in the haste of her departure had neglected to secure any sleeping section, now found that everything had been previously engaged and that the only alternative to sitting up all night was an uninviting looking lounge at the end of the car. Mrs. Henshall, who had been attracted by the girl's despairing face, stepped forward and offered her the other berth in her own compartment.

Edna accepted gratefully and warmly thanked her unknown companion for her courtesy.

As she moved from the seat her foot touched a small, dark object lying on the floor close to her chair. It was a leather card case, stamped with initials "H. R. H."

With a view to discovering the owner Edna opened it, and extracting one of the bits of pasteboard read aloud, "Mr. Henry Rowan Henshall, New York city."

"Why, this must have been dropped by the gentleman who spoke to me just as the train was leaving San Francisco," she said.

Lena had grown deadly pale. "The gentleman who spoke to you?" she questioned faintly.

"Yes," replied Edna hesitatingly, "a tall, blonde gentleman who has followed me on several previous occasions. This evening he spoke to me and I resented it. A stranger present at the time came to my assistance, and in the disturbance that followed this card case was probably lost."

Lena Henshall remained silent. Crushed and humiliated by this proof of her husband's duplicity she had not the courage to further question her companion.

Her love for her husband was the first grand emotion of her life, and the discovery she had just made filled her with a mad, wild jealousy. When she finally retired for the night it was with the pleasing knowledge that in the berth above her, by her own invitation, lay the girl who was the cause of her husband's indifference and probably the possessor of her husband's love.

How long she tossed about in her narrow berth, wakeful and miserable, Lena never knew.

Just as merciful sleep was closing her weary eyelids there came a sudden jar, then a horrid crash, a shriek that rent the air, a blow upon her head that made a hideous glare of light, and then darkness absolute and blessed unconsciousness.

* * * * * *

The papers of the following day were filled with the ghastly details of the awful railway accident near B——.

The names of the surviving passengers, together with a list of the killed and wounded, were published, but the name of Edna Crawford, alias Louise Neville, did not appear in any of these accounts, nor did the strictest and most diligent inquiries throw any light on the complete and mysterious disappearance of this young woman.

XII.—CONCLUSION.

By BILL NYE. Illustrated by W. H. SPRAGUE.

[Copyright. All rights reserved.]

Across the peaceful bosom of the great plains no sound disturbed the night save now and then when at long intervals the shadowy figure of a coyote crossed an aisle in the sage brush, and opening his snapping, drooling jaws gave forth that justly celebrated dietonic scale of his which is so well calculated to call out the goose pimples even on the death mask of Methuselah.

Even the wind trod softly over the scorched and withered grass, and the well lubricated moon stole in and out among the clouds without a creak, with the exception of Bitter creek, of course, which laved its alkali shores in the eternal solitudes, and bleached still whiter, as the years went by, the snowy bones of those who once had sought to invade this great undertaking establishment of nature—this petrified hush of centuries.

But what sound is this that gently beats upon the tense drum of the listener's ear?

The distant jar and gentle palpitations of a coming train from the west!

Scarcely do we hear this and catch the yellow twinkle of a headlight when another mailed roar from the east and a little crawling light growing rapidly out of the dusk and distance swallow the intervening miles, and in a flash the two screaming, snorting, panting monsters have met like mail clad giants in a mighty tournament.

Come to the bridal chamber, Death!
Come to the mother when she feels
For the first time her first born's breath;
Come when the blessed seals
Which close the pestilence are broke,
And crowded cities wail its stroke.

Come in Consumption's ghastly form!
The earthquake's shock, the ocean's storm;
Come when the heart beats high and warm
With banquet, song and dance and wine,
And thou art terrible. The tear,
The groan, the knell, the pall, the bier,
And all we know or dream or fear,
Of agony are thine.

But to the heart, where love is dead,
And hope is kneeling o'er its bier,
Thy face with joy is overspread,
And so lights out with bounding tread
The soul that only sorrowed here.

When Lena awoke with this dull pain in her head she felt certain that she was dead, and was almost tickled to death to think that her sad heart would sorrow no more and that Harry was free; but almost at once came the smell of hot varnish and the slight suspicion of an overdone porter who ought to be turned over.

"Great Gawd," she said, as her breath came in brief pants, "the car is on fire. I must go away."

To a spectator who might have seen the collision it would have seemed impossible that a living thing could come out of this terrible wreck and holocaust; but ere long a venerable apple worm crawled out of the cool side of a nice eating apple, and seeing that he could be of no further use on board the train, came out of the car and slunk away in the darkness.

Soon the cheerful car stove begins to get in its work, and the chaos of broken woodwork begins to burn, at first slowly, then, as the swift winds of the plains catch it, the red blaze leaps out and greets the frightened night with a cackling laugh.

To go back to Mr. Crawford, at Chicago, with the author is but the work of an instant.

DR. WATSON.

When Dr. Watson returned after sending his lying telegram to Edna he found the house empty and the door locked, the shutters drawn and everything deserted. The reader will ask how he knew that every one was gone when the door was locked and he could not get in, but we must remember that he was in the hypnotism business, and could do things that other people might consider difficult. Many a time as a boy he had hypnotized a watermelon dog and then helped himself to the luscious fruit.

He soon learned that Mr. Crawford had taken his whole household, and with light baggage had fled to the depot. He followed rapidly, and fortunately caught up with the carriage containing the party, for they were "bridged," and had been for nearly an hour. He tried to hypnotize Mr. Crawford, but the old man had shrewdly had himself vaccinated, and so he was safe.

MR. CRAWFORD.

There was nothing for the doctor to do but to follow the procession, for Crawford had evidently heard that his daughter was in California, and had resolved to go to her.

For some time the doctor argued with the old man, but without avail. He then tried to hypnotize the ticket office into giving him a lower berth, but the agent had been exposed when he was young, and so wasn't afraid of getting it now.

Therefore Dr. Watson had to jump hurriedly on the rear platform as the train pulled out and sleep in the smoking car with his front teeth resting heavily on his knees all the livelong night.

In the drawing room of a pleasant and airy sleeping car supplied with electric bells and a thermometer was a buffet, the sandwiches in which smelled like lower eight, while lower eight got even by smelling like a corned beef sandwich, and here sat Mr. Crawford and Miss Brown. Below is given a picture of Miss Brown. Her name was Celia Brown, but her friends called her Ceil and Brown with an air of badinage which brought a rosy flush and sweet bright smiles to her fair face.

The artist has happily caught this smile with his little catch-as-catch-can camera.

The picture was originally a full length figure, but owing to the pressure on our advertising space and a note just received from the chief of police we have decided to condense the portrait as much as possible.

MISS BROWN.

Briefly but truthfully and tearfully Miss Brown made a clean breast of her sorrowful slavery to Dr. Watson, the hypnotist, and on her knees she promised the old man that never again would she give him an opportunity to wield his ghoulish and disagreeable influence over her.

As the fair head of the beautiful girl rested on his knee, and with trembling fingers he screwed up her Psyche knot a little tighter, so that it could not get muddy as the spirited roadster sped along the track, he thought he had never saw so fair a being, taken all around, as she was. [Mr. Crawford always used the choicest English in his conversation, but occasionally his thoughts were ungrammatical.]

"I also have a confession to make, dear one," he said. "Prepare for a piece of information which you can hardly credit, save that I, who am, or is, or are, as the case may be, the criminal, tell it to you myself.

"Would you believe that I, who am your comrade on this journey, whose face is so refined, so spiritnelle, could have taken the life of Dr. Cronin?

"Could you believe that I, a professor of religion and a worthy inside guard for two terms in the Little Bethel Independent Order of Good Templars, No. 38,702, could have gone under the cover of darkness and with a bright new clasp knife cut into the nice warm vitals of a neighbor, and then, with his hot blood spurting up my sleeve, hacked the dying man to pieces, put him in a shawl strap and carried him away to a sewer trap and concealed his disheveled remains so that the police could not get on to my spoor?

"And yet for months this terrible secret has been praying upon my soul. Yesterday while Dr. Watson was uptown it occurred to me that possibly I did not kill Cronin, and so, picking up a paper, I read that another man did it. Following up this germ of thought, I soon also discovered that I was abroad all the year of the Cronin murder. I am now wondering if Dr. Watson has not been wielding an unholy influence over me which the delightful climate of California and some light stimulant like rye whisky and opium may overcome."

A quick sob came from the bowed form before him. "Oh, Ephraim, thank God. You may be able to prove yourself innocent after all," she said. She had never called him Ephraim before.

HENRY HENSHALL.

He stooped and whispered a few low, passionate words in her ear. Her head bent lower and a quick flush of shrimp pink bathed face, neck and shoulders.

It was but the work of a moment for Ephraim to call up a sleepy but clerical looking man in upper five, also in pajamas, who quietly slid down into the drawing room and in the presence of the sleeping car conductor and porter made the two man and wife.

And what of Henry Henshall, the hero and artistic ass of this story?

Leaving his art to shirk for itself, and forgetting that he had promised on that very day to paint two large barns for a party in Oakland, he fought madly for a place on the train in order to follow an unknown flaxen haired fiddler, who did not care a cent for him or his art. Henry Henshall was not a bad man, but he needed some great calamity or severe concussion to jolt a little sense into him. That was all. Life had been too smooth with him. He had painted several portraits of Beatrice Cenci, which had been accepted by the family and paid for, yet after all he needed something that would almost kill him, but not quite. This would, the doctor thought, knock the talents out of him, and give him an ambition to do as he agreed and pay his debts.

Such an episode was in store for him. For, by a strange fatality, this train he rode upon a few nights later (although Mr. Barnum, by a slight oversight, which is perfectly pardonable in a man who has a large amount of stock to feed and water and bed down and take care of nights, places the accident on the first night out) crashed into the train which brought Mr. Crawford west in search of his child.

On that fatal night Edna placed her violin in her berth, where it could not get overheated by the steam pipes, and then, letting down her angelic hair till it fell about her slight figure like a halo of molasses candy, she looked so sweet that the porter thoughtlessly swallowed a pillow which he was holding in his teeth as he watched her skin up the steep ladder and plunge into her couch with a glad cry.

She soon stuck her head down into Mrs. Henshall's berth, however, and said tenderly:

"My dear friend, I do not know why, but I think I am going to die," and she thoughtlessly quoted some lines from the deathbed scene in which Little Eva gently glides up the flume at $2 a week in an "Uncle Tom's Cabin" company.

"I have saved quite a little fortune from my popular appearances before the public, and I wish you would give it to my father if I die."

A quick sob came from the lower berth occupied by Mrs. Henshall.

It was hers. She made it herself.

"Nay, nay, my dear," she said, "if eyether die, let it be I—or me, if that sounds better. Oh, let me die!"

With that she moaned piteously, like a person who does not feel well.

"Yes, dear lady," said Edna, handing her a crocheted purse containing $8. "This will lift the mortgage on the old farm and wipe out the personal indebtedness of my father. I am a poor, persecuted girl, followed at all times by either a wild eyed hypnotizer who is out of a job, or else a spitz whiskered artist who barely earns enough by kalsomining to follow me about like a mutton headed Nemesis all the while. I shall die content, dear lady. Good night."

EDNA CRAWFORD.

* * * * * *

I cannot go on to any great length to describe that horrible night. It was a wonder that one human being came forth alive from the terrible wreck—and awful hell, I was going to say.

Henry Henshall was struck on the head by a fresh train fig, and for a time lay unconscious, but the smell of his burning trousers aroused him, and he got up and went out of the car.

Strangest of all, the blow had cleared his intellect and knocked the laudable pus out of his mind, as it were, and "Lena" was the first word on his lips. The awful picture seemed to bewilder him a moment, and then he set to work. From the window of a burning car a white and beautiful arm extended through the broken window. On the hand, though spatted with bright scarlet splotches, he recognized his wife's wedding ring.

* * * * * *

With a cry of agony he dashed into the crushed and burning wreck, and just as the flames were beginning to creep upon her he jumped from the lunary flames with his fainting but happy wife in his arms. Again and again he blessed the happy blow on his head which had cleared his vision and made him see how near he came to losing a good, true and desirable wife.

Lena's hair turned snowy white, and is so yet, but she makes a beautiful matron, a kind mother and a good wife to the cashier of her father's bank, Mr. Henry Henshall, who has a signature now worth $250,000 in his own individual right.

Edna was never fully recovered. Aside from the hinges of her violin case, her remains were never found. I hated to write this, but I am not here to be sentimental. I must be truthful. Her money was used, or a portion of it at least, to relieve her father's indebtedness, and with the balance was founded a conservatory of music in Boston.

Dr. Watson was pinned to the wreck by the car and slowly scalded to death. Before he died he said he was sorry for what he had done, but yet with his last breath he urged no one to take a preacher who was praying for him. He was a low creature. He was a disagreeable person, and his death utterly failed to cast a gloom over the community.

Mr. Crawford and his bride returned to Chicago and remained there quite awhile.

They were very, very happy indeed.

Mrs. Dr. Watson went on the stage and did well. She receives good wages, and also got $35,000 insurance on her husband, whose life she had insured the year before. With this money she bought two beautiful dresses, which she now wears on the stage and which make a great hit.

Mr. and Mrs. Henshall are real happy all the time. Henry is a good provider and Lena can construct a cake which will make one's hair curl. They have a good deal of company come to see them, and almost without exception each one says on going away, "We have had a real good time."

More than half a billion of dollars in unclaimed estates are awaiting the rightful heirs in England, Scotland, Wales and Ireland. Most of these heirs are in the United States, and have been advertised for in English papers. Thousands of heirs have never seen these advertisements. If your ancestors on your father's or mother's side came from any of the above named countries do not fail to write to E. Ross, European Claims Agency, 227 Grand St. New York, and ascertain if you are an heir. Your deceased ancestor's rights are yours by British law. We have information of every estate and deceased person whose heirs have been advertised for in 125 years. Send postal note for 50 cents to insure information. If you are an heir we will recover the estate for you. No recovery no fee.

CLINTON, N. C.—NOV. 13, 1890.

The Baptist State Convention met at Shelby yesterday.

In the whole South there are but three Republicans elected to Congress.

The Cumberland County Agricultural Fair is in progress this week. Some of our people are in attendance.

The next Senate of North Carolina will stand Democrats 43; Republicans and Independents 7.

His Honor Judge Boykin is presiding over Johnstone court this week and will hold Harnett court next week.

The Democratic majority in this State is about 50,000. We will have about 90 majority in the next Legislature.

The payment of pensions under the new law will commence on Nov. 30th. The pension warrants will be sent to the Register of Deeds of the various counties.

The Republican managers now realize the truth of Mr. Lincoln's remark: "You can fool some of the people all the time, all of the people some of the time, but you can't fool all the people all the time."—Star.

Wake county has elected her entire ticket and the court house ring is broken. The State Chronicle has made a noble fight for the Democracy of Wake and the State and its efforts will not go unrewarded.

The fact that the Farmers' Alliance has beatten Ingall, saved Kansas and given the whole country "gentle reddance," should forever estoppe any good democrat or friend of his country from further opposition to the order.

Everybody is talking about the great political Revolution, and some say they don't understand it. There is theing strange about it at all. It simply means that the people have waked up, and they waked up in their Alliance Lodges.

The official count of Cumberland gives Merrimon 1,247 majority. Grady, for Congress, 1,150 majority. No majorities less than 1,000. That of Sutton, for the House, is 1,855. Mr. Sutton's friends are urging his name for Speaker of the next House

New Hanover county is to be congratulated on her election of the Democratic ticket. The odor of the court house has been bad ever since the war and it will require a good deal, of scaling and scouring and mopping before it can be made fit for the new officers elected.

The President of the United States issues a proclamation setting apart Thursday, Nov. 27th, as a day of thanksgiving. A majority of the people of this country, politically known as Democrats, will feel more thankful on that day than the minority, politically known as Republicans.

How will Reed feel in the next House of Representatives if the Democrats feed him out of his own spoon. He will be in an awkard position trying to defend a Republican minority against a democratic majority. If we were a member of the next Congress we would be tempted to move to unseat him on general principles.

On last Tuesday, in Durham, the corner stone of Trinity College was laid by the Masons. Addresses were made by Gen. R. B. Vance and Ex-Gov. Thos. J. Jarvis. It marks an important era in the history of Trinity. Our thanks are due the Building committee and our countyman Mr. W. C. Merritt for invitations to attend.

It is a Mistake

To try to cure catarrh by using local applications. Catarrh is not a local but a constitutional disease. It is not a disease of the man's nose, but of the man. Therefore, to effect a cure, requires a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, acting through the blood, reaches every part of the system, expelling the taint which causes the disease,

VETERAN REUNION.

The First Battalion of North Carolina State Troops Celebrated at Magnolia--Address by Col. E. D. Hall.

Magnolia, N. C., Nov. 6.—(Special)—This has been a patriotic day here. The occasion was a reunion of the surviving members of Company B, First North Carolina Battalion of the late war. Besides the surviving members of that notable command, there was present a fine assembly of ladies and gentlemen from Duplin and the surrounding counties.

The meeting was organized by calling Mr. J. Wells Taylor, of Duplin, of the command while in active service, to the Chair, and appointing J. T. Collins, Esq., of Burgaw, and a soldier in it, as Secretary. Rev. Colin Shaw, Chaplian in the Confederate States Army, opened the meeting with an eloquent and patriotic prayer. The roll of the Command was then called. After these preliminary proceedings, the invited speaker of the occasion, Col. E. D. Hall, of Wilmington, was happily introduced by the Chair to the fine and appreciative audience. Col. Hall feelingly alluded in his introductory remarks to the association, and events of the past, as connected with the war, and as explanatory of this patriotic reunion. He brought tears from the eyes of many as he dwelt with pathos upon the reminiscences of the war, and as he related the bravery and self-sacrificing services and heroism of our North Carolina Soldiers. Warming up the assemblage in this eloquent statements bearing upon the trials and events and patriotism of those times that tried men's souls, he launched forth in a bold, able and splendid address upon the causes of the war, and the impressive lessons it teaches us all. He contended that the bloody strife originated from a long and persistent disregard of right, justice, and constitutional obligations on the part of New England puritans. He said that this puritanical spirit, intolerant, oppressive, intrusive upon the rights of others, and all for self, was wafted to New England from old England, after failing there to accomplish its proscriptive and exorbitant purposes. That it spread over the New England States, punishing witches, so called, and originating all sorts of obnoxious and impetous heresies, until it took up the abolition of slavery as one of its uncontitutional heresies. That the same spirit would not have allowed the constitution to have been formed, had it not have been for Washington and others of our early fore-fathers, after the merican Independence of 1776 had been acknowledged. The able manner in which Col. Hall handled this part of his masterly address shows him to an original thinker and a statesman. Nor was he less potent in showing that there are distinctive peculiarities between the North and South. That the Southern people are less selfish, much more moral, patriotic and reliable in principle and duty, while the love of money and power was the all-absorbing purpose and aim of the more immoral north. He went on in this line of thought in a most impressive manner contending that the principles of the late Southern Confederacy would yet prevail in the North if this country should remain fixed upon the constitution and constitutional liberty. So splendid and able was the address that when he concluded a vote of thanks was passed to its distinguished author, and a copy requested for publication in our leading papers, especially the Messenger and THE CAUCASIAN.

Rev. Colin Shaw was then called out and made a fine address, well suited to the occasion.

Burgaw was then selected as the next place of reunion for the surviving members, and the second Thursday in September next as the time. The following members were appointed a committee of arrangements for the occasion. Messrs. J. T. Collins, William Bass, B. M. Croom, Andrew Moore, N. B. Croom, B. W. Collins and N. W. Powers,

The meeting then adjourned for dinner. A rich and elegant repast was spread in the grove of the Academy where the meeting was held, by the ladies of Duplin county, who are always ready to give a helping hand in all such patriotic occasions as this. All who attended the meeting were invited and accepted. The Secretary was requested to report the proceedings of the meeting to the press, especially the Wilmington Messenger and CLINTON CAUCASIAN.

J. T. COLLINS,
Secretary.

SHIFTING THE RESPONSIBILITY.

(Chicago Tribune.)

The railway accident had been a terrible one, but one of the men who were carrying the thirty-seventh victim up the embankment said, with strong feeling:

"Somebody will have to pay dearly for all this!"

The mangled passenger opened his eyes and glared at the speaker.

"The company is not to blame," he said feebly. "This is a dispensation of Providence."

He was the attorney for the road.

Leading authorities say the only proper way to treat catarrh is to take a constitutional remedy, like Hood's Sarsaparilla.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

CATARRH

Is a constitutional and not a local disease, and therefore it cannot be cured by local applications. It requires a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, working through the blood, eradicates the impurity which causes and promotes the disease, and effects a permanent cure. Thousands of people testify to the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a remedy for catarrh when other preparations had failed.

CATARRH

"I will say I have been troubled for several years with that terribly disagreeable disease, catarrh. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla with the very best results. It cured me of that continual dropping in my throat, and stuffed up feeling. It has also helped my mother, who has taken it for run down state of health and kidney trouble." MRS. S. D. HEATH, Putnam, Conn.

"I have used Hood's Sarsaparilla for catarrh with very satisfactory results. I have received more permanent benefit from it than from any other remedy I have ever tried." M. E. READ, of A. Read & Son, Wauseon, O.

—The Demorest Contest Club of Little Coharie township gave a pleasant and much enjoyable entertainment, consisting of music and temperance recitations, in the Methodist church in Clinton last Friday night. The representatives were, Misses Bettie Underwood, Sophronina Warren, Mary Bullard, Ellen Culbreth, Katie Williams, Bettie Fisher, Lillie Cooper, Georgia Cooper, Willie Culbreth and Octavia Fisher. Mr. J. D. O. Culbreth has charge of the club.

Mr. John Underwood and Marshall Bullard, who were present assisted in the two pretty songs, "Waive the Banner" and "Vote as You Pray." For some reason the medal was not awarded, but in a former contest it was awarded we think to Miss Lillie Cooper. After the exercises an oyster supper was given for the benefit of the church.

—We have been asked several times since last Friday, what was the cause and meaning of the Democrat medal contest clubs. Mr. and Mrs. W. Jennings Demorest the editors and proprietors of Demorests' Family magazine are strong advocates of prohibition. The idea of getting the boys and girls of the country interested in advocating the cause, by contesting for medals with appropriate speechs, essays and recitations, occured to them in 1887. The first contest was in New York city in May of that year. Mr. Demorest says that North Carolina is the "banner State," more medal having been awarded to the boys and girls of this State than in any other state of the Union. He says that he will furnish the medals and have these contests to continue "Until Prohibition prohibits to 'earth's remotest bound.'" The price of this magazine is $2.00 a year. The club price with THE CAUCASIAN for oneyear is only $3.00.

A Democratic Dinner.

The people of Newton Grove have decided to have a public dinner in honor of the great victory won by the people all over the country. Chas. B. Aycock, Esq., of Goldsboro, has been invited to deliver the oration of the day. The date will be Saturday, the 22nd of November.

BARBERY—MORRISEY.

A Beautiful Rainbow Wedding.

The nuptials of a happy party were solomnized in the Presbyterian church last evening. The church was beautifully and tastily decorated with chrysauthemums and evergreens. At 8:30 Miss Pocohoatas Britt was at the organ executing Mendelssohn's wedding march, when the wedding party entered. The bride elect Miss Eliza J. Morrisey was leaning upon the arm of her maid of honor, Miss Walker Morrisey; the groom elect, Mr. L. P. Barbrey upon the arm of his best man; Mr. Mosely Hubbard. The attendents were as follows:

Miss Florence Faison with Mr. C. E. Pierce; Miss Mittie Beaman, with Mr. R. W. Holliday; Miss Mary Lou Brown with Mr. T. M. Lee; Miss Annie Morrisey with Mr. Ed. Barbrey; Miss Anna Stanford with Mr. M. J. Herring; Miss Sudie Faison with Mr. E. M. Hobbs; Miss Annie Boykin with Mr. W. S. Partrick; Miss Mamie Boykin with Mr. R. G. Morrisey; Misses Bettie and Rena Johnson acted as flower girls, and J. C. Holmes and Marion Butler as ushers.

Each of the bride's maids carried bunches of white chrysanthemums. Soft and low from the organ comes the flower song, during the rendering of which, Dr. B. F. Marable performs the marriage ceremony in a strikingly impressive and handsome manner. The ceremony over, the bridal party repair to the residence of Mrs. Morrisey, where the bride is assisted by the brides' maids in receiving the invited guests. The parlor is decorated to compare with the church and even more tastefully done. The evening is most pleasantly spent by all in honor of the happy event. The bride is a most estimable young lady and one of Clinton's favorites. The bridegroom is a fine young man, liked by every one and one of the town's model men. It is a happy match and THE CAUCASIAN extends its hearty congratulations to both.

The Captain wishes the following named members to see him in person or write him whether they wish to take a part in it, so he can prepare a dinner for them on that day, or some other day in the near future:

Judge W. T. Faircloth, Thaddeus Jones, Sr., N. M. Swinson, Jack Senter, William Deavor, Lem Cherry, Joe E. Wilson, G. W. Fulghum, Henry Davis, Elijah Davis, J. Hinson, N. G. Jisinell, T. Congratulations.

The following special from the accomplished editor of that excellent paper, the Fayetteville Observer, contains in few words about the substance of dozens of letters of congratulations that we have received since the election:

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C.,
November 6th, '90.

Mr. Marion Butler, Clinton, N. C.
Accept my hearty congratulations upon your magnificent victory.

Very truly,
Z. W. WHITEHEAD.

We take this means of thanking our many friends for their kindness, but would ask them to rather congratulate the county than me, for it is a people's victory, fought and won on principles dear to them.

Hon. E. J. Hill Speaks in Far Off Washington.

In a recent copy of the Evening Bulletin, published at Whitcome, in the State of Washington, we notice the name of Ex-Consul E. J. Hill among the list of speakers at a grand Democratic rally. The report of his speech is the longest, save one, so we judge that he did his native State credit and made a fine impression upon the people of his adopted home. We hope to have an article from his pen in these columns soon, giving a description of his far off home in the great Northwest.

All Through Sampson.

What Sampsonians are Doing and Saying.

☞ Send us the news from your township for this column. Every subscriber to this paper has a right and is requested to contribute items of news in "hes" neighborhood for this column. We will not publish your name unless you desire it.

PINEY GROVE

Mr. Howard Kornegay left a few days ago for Florida.

Mr. Rowland Huggins is home from Rutherford College

Mr. J. S. Aman has shown us some very fine yam potatoes. He grew thirteen hundred bushels on three acres.

NORTH CLINTON.

Mr. E. M. Hobbs began a school at Bush Hill last Monday.

Mr. John Lewis has a record that probably can not be equalled by any man in the county. He is 77 years old, has never had a difficulty with any man, never had a case in court, never been a witness, never taken a drink of whiskey nor a chew of tobacco. Would that the county was full of such men.

TURKEY.

Died, Miss Nancy Johnson, daughter of Mr. H. J. Johnson. She was a young lady just blooming into womanhood. We understood that it was billions fever.

Mrs. R. J. Best of Wilmington is visiting her father, E. J. Colwell.

Mr. Payton Rackley and Mr. John West are the only two men in our township to vote for Jackson for President. This was their first vote and they pride themselves to day upon the fact that they have always voted the straight ticket. Mr. Mr. West has never missed but one election, then he was too sick to go.

Mrs. John Morisey of Cumberland is visiting at Mr. Wm. A. Faison's.

LISBON.

I have thought for some time I would write to THE CAUCASIAN, but kept waiting for good news and now I think I have a piece good enough to tell. (but expect you have heard it.) They have failed to "bell the cat" and the mouse that had that job, has gone in his hole and it will be a long time before they will hold another "mass meeting" to try to bell that cat again.

With barns full of corn and a cat to watch the mice, we expect to live for the next two years.

Lisbon can boast of a Joseph who dreams, and interprets his dream. He dreamed "he saw a white cow walking in the Heavens with rapid pace, occasionaly she would come to a cloud but nevertheless, she walked on with the same ease." His interpretation of this dream was: "Marion Butler going to the Senate of North Carolina" I waited to find out if Joseph was a true prophet and find he is, so all who have dreams they wish interpreted can apply to Lisbon's Joseph. F.

There is a collard in Mr. Lucian Herring's garden 6 feet and 6 inches high. He ought to carry it up to the Sampson Fair. Mr. Otis Herring has a potatoe vine almost as remarkable. It is nearly 40 feet long.

Mr. Marion Butler delivered a lecture before Clear Run Alliance on last Saturday evening.

A colored man down here says that they were told that they would get white votes to help elect Scurlock if the colored people would not put out a candidate of their own race for State Senator.

FRANKLIN.

Mr. C. C. Boykin has made more corn with less work than any other man probably ever did. He made 400 bushels with 1½ days work. It is a fine variety of corn. He picked out 11 ears that shelled a peck. He says it any one doubts this statement he can produce Mr. C. C. Corbett as a witness.

The farmers are about through housing the best crop that they have had for several years. The potatoe crop is extraordinary fine. Some grown by L. D. Highsmith measuring from 16 to 18 inches in circumference.

There is a man in this township who declares that he is too lazy to work, still he has enough potatoes and pumpkins to last him for several years, if they would keep. He, Mr. M. J. Moore, planted a few pumpkin seed in a piece of low land corn, containing about one and a half acres, and made between one and two hundred pumpkins, some of them measuring from five to six feet in circumference.

On last Saturday Mr. F. T. Wooten preached one of the best sermons at Well's Chapel that we have heard in some time. It was on the famous Sam Jones style. On the Sunday following the exercises lasted nearly all day, consisting of Sunday School and the announcement of the amount of money raised by the "Willing Workers," etc., amounting to more than $30.

TAYLOR'S BRIDGE.

Mr. R. G. Maxwell, a phrenologes, writes to Mr. Josiah Robinson that he will lecture at Red Hill church Saturday, 15th of Nov. on Phrenology and that on the following day Sunday he will lecture on Religion at the same place.

Dr. G. W. Mosely is improving some, though right sick yet.

SOUTH CLINTON.

Rev. J. W. Turner will hold divine service at Chesnutt's school house next Sunday morning, Nov. 16th.

Mr. Alonza Lewis grew nearly two hundred bushels of sweet potatoes on three fourths of an acre. Twelve of them weighed 36 pounds.

Misses Mary and Allie Matthis, who have been on a trip to Johnson county, have returned.

DISMAL.

Mr. John C. Williams will have a family re-union on Thursday, November 27th—Thanksgiving Day. All of his children, grandchildren and great grand children and great great grand children will be present. Dr. B. F. Marable has been invited to deliver a sermon for them on that day.

In last week's paper you said Dismal gave Butler for the Senate 159 majority. It is more than that, it is 164, the largest majority we ever gave any man.

MCDANIELS.

The barn and stables of Capt. James Wright were burned on last Sunday night. One horse and a portion of the corn was burned. It is thought to be the work of an incendiary.

HONEYCUTTS.

Mr. Amma Royal's farm is poor, but he is gradually improving it, and has done remarkably well this year. He plows only one horse, and has spent less than $5 for hired labor. But he has made 250 bushels of corn, 160 bushels of potatoes, 2,400 pounds of lint cotton and fodder, peas and chufas in proportion. In addition at odd moments he has made 17 barrels of turpentine. What one man on a poor place can beat this? We wish this township was full of such farmers.

Honeycutt's majority for Senator two years ago was 45. This year it is 97.

Salem Items.

[Special Correspondent.]

The above named items are but seldom seen in your paper, but our section we believe is not without weekly news and could furnish you items each week, but this is the first time the spirit has moved us to write.

Mr. A. E. Royall, who has been clerking for Capt. J. L. Autry, returned on last Thursday evening with a handsome young bride to the home of his father Mr. Molton Royall, where a reception was given to the happy couple. The lady whom he married was a Miss Culbreth who lived near his place of business. We are anticipating another marriage in the neighborhood ere this will be published, but from fear of being mistaken will hold it from type this week.

The Sunday school at Salem is in a prosperous condition, but has decided to hold up during the winter months, a plan that has proven most satisfactory in the country. A Christmas tree will be given the children for their punctuality and interest in the school.

There was an excursion from Fayetteville to Wilmington on the new Railroad last Friday under the management of Capt. J. L. Autry, it was largerly patronized, about five hundred in all; the proceeds, we hear were given to the new Baptist church at Autryville.

Hog cholera is very prevalent in this section, hogs penned for port do not escape it, but as the potato crop is abundant we have nothing to fear,—save Catarrh. I believe the latest thing is that an abundance of starch matter produces catarrh.

In writing up the news of this section we should not fail to mention the healthy growth of Salem High School. The present outlook, Mr. Butler thinks, is still more encouraging, he has enrolled forty five pupils and about half the number are boaders. The pupils in our school now represents six counties and we have one from Va.

If our few items find their way into print, we hope to let you hear from us again. SCHOOL BOY.

Personals.

Mrs. C. . Williamson and her three children left Tuesday morning for New York to visit her uncle. She will make her permant home in New Jersey with her son Romie.

Messrs. J. B. Bodenhammer, G. E. Summerlin and B. F. Boykin are attending the Cumberland fair this week.

Mr. F. R. Cooper of the Clinton Bar is attending court in Cumberland this week. He will also solicit special premums for the Sampsom fair while there.

WILLIE E. PETERSON.

Departed this life on the evening of the 29th of October, 1890, WILLIE E. PETERSON, age 29 years. He leaves a father, mother, two sisters, a brother, with many friends to mourn their loss. As he had been in feeble health for the past few years spent the most of his time about the house, his foad mother knows best how much he is missed. He was an obedient son, affectionate brother, and esteemed most by those who knew him best. He was ever ready to speak words of comfort, making happy those around him.

Yes, dear Willie, we miss you now,
Our heads are bowed in grief,
But when we remember you're free from pain
Then comes a sweet relief.

We know you're with your sisters now,
On that bright and shining shore,
Singing songs of reunion,
Never to part any more.

The sting of death is over,
The victory now is won,
All earthly troubles ended,
And a better life begun.

Then dry your tears and mourners;
'Tis our Heavenly Father's will
To call us all to Heaven
When our station here we fill,

We'll meet with our dear loved ones
Who have just gone on before,
To greet us at our coming
When all our toils are o'er.

Restored His Wife's Health.

My wife suffered for years from debility and a general breaking down of health, the result of diseases peculiar to women. A few bottles of Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) restored her to perfect health. It built her up, increased her appetite and weight, and all she is now the picture of health. The speedy recovery of my wife from her long illness caused all my family, and several of my neighbors, to take S. S. S. As a tonic we are all delighted with it.

BABY CURED.

My baby had the worse case of Catarrh that I ever saw a small child afflicted with. The nasal discharge was very large and very offensive. Having some personal knowledge of the curative properties of S. S. S. I gave the baby a course of S. S. S., using nothing else. In a short time the discharge from the nose stopped, and the Catarrh was cured entirely and permanently, as there has been no return of it since.

That Little Tickling

In your throat, which makes you cough once in a while and keeps you constantly clearing your throat, arises from catarrh, and as catarrh is a constitutional disease the ordinary cough medicines all fail to hit the spot. What you need is a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla. Many people who have taken this medicine for scrofula, dyspepsia, loss of appetite, and other troubles, have been surprised that it should cure this troublesome cough. But to know the actual cause of the cough is to solve the mystery. Many cases of consumption can be traced back to the neglect of some such slight affection as this. Consumption can be controlled in its early stages, and the effect of Hood's Sarsaparilla in purifying the blood, building up the general health, and expelling the scrofulous taint which is the cause, of catarrh and consumption, has restored to perfect health many persons on whom this dreaded disease seemed to have a firm hold.

Messrs. F. J. Cheney & Co—Gentlemen:—I have been in in the general practice of medicine for most 40 years, and would say that in all my practice, have never seen a preparation that I could prescribe with as much confidence of success as I can Hall's Cure, manufactured by you. Have prescribed it a great many times and its effect is wonderful, and would say in conclusion that I have yet to find a case of Catarrh that it would not cure, if they would take it according to directions.
